Malaysian Prime Minister Najib Razak was under intense pressure to deliver a historic account of his family's assets in an international court. Malaysian Prime Minister Najib Razak was under intense pressure to deliver a historic account of his family's assets in an international court today. He was subject to questioning about his family's wealth at a United Nations human rights council session in Geneva. Najib Razak faces a possible challenge of the country's strongman rule at the country's first multi-party elections in May. The prime minister, tipped to become the longest-serving leader in Malaysian history, is expected to continue in power for another five years. But Najib is already being investigated by the United States Department of Justice for allegations he misappropriated US$4.5 billion (£2.6 billion). His brother, a former premier, was sentenced to a bare five-year jail term by a Malaysian court last year for corruption, with the family's estimated net worth at the time being US$15 billion. The prime minister himself has a vast collection of properties, including seven palaces across the country, a luxury yacht, a Maybach car and even a private island. The Wall Street Journal reported in September that the prime minister has amassed more than $100 million (£61 million) from a real estate deal in the US. The paper claimed the cash, which came from the sale of a 20,000-square-foot (1,974-square-metre) mansion in Beverly Hills, California, was in part used to build his palatial home in an upmarket neighbourhood in Kuala Lumpur. Najib's government has to date failed to explain how such a large fortune can be amassed by a career civil servant, whose only company is the government. 648931e174
