This is where you can create a new background. Here we'll create a new background, basic coloring and a new texture. 1. Select a canvas big enough to fit your Avatar. 2. Choose "Create new layer" from the Layers Panel menu and save it on your computer with a name like "background image". 3. Drag your new background image on the canvas and then set the layer to "Fill" (with a fill color) or with layer's opacity, to make your background opaque. 4. Duplicate the layer to create two layers. 5. Keep the first layer as the background and delete the second one. 6. Next, let's make the background more interesting. Select the brush tool in the brush panel. 7. Choose a brush size depending on the size you'd like to make your Avatar. 8. Create an intricate design by adding multiple colors and textures. You can add multiple textures to the same brush or even create new brushes with a new design each time you make your Avatar. This way you'll be able to change your favorite design. I create around ten to fifteen variations of each brush or texture. 9. You can add shadows to your design with the "Layered Style" (solid black color) and the "Stroke" tools. 10. Define the opacity of the texture you've added by selecting it with the Layers Panel's "Layer style" dropdown, then select "Transparency" and adjust your opacity (0-100%). 11.

The present invention relates to a new and distinct cultivar of Petunia plant, botanically known as Petunia×hybrida and hereinafter referred to by the name 'Duepet'. The new Petunia is a product of a planned breeding program conducted by the Inventor in Rheinberg, Germany. The objective of the breeding program is to create new freely-branching and compact Petunia cultivars with numerous attractive flowers. The new Petunia originated from a cross-pollination made by the Inventor in July, 2002 in Rheinberg, Germany of a proprietary selection of Petunia×hybrida identified as code number T48-0271-021, not patented, as the female, or seed, parent with a proprietary selection of Petunia×hybrida identified as code number T48-2868-006, not patented, as the male, or pollen, parent. The new Petunia was discovered and selected by the Inventor as a single flowering plant within the progeny of the stated cross-pollination in a controlled greenhouse environment in Rheinberg, Germany in May, 2004. Asexual reproduction of the new Petunia by terminal cuttings in a controlled greenhouse environment in Rheinberg, Germany since June, 2004, has shown that the unique features of this new Petunia are stable and reproduced true to type in successive generations.

Q: Cannot read property 'enabled' of null. How to get rid of it I am working on a program with Angular 5.0 and I am trying to get rid of Cannot read property 'enabled' of null. this error on the login page. I have tried different ways of resolving it but to no avail. Here is the code for my LoginForm:

Q: What should be refactored for a multiple sections website? I have a website with 2 completely independent "sections" (it's a personal website). Basically, the only thing that is the same between the two sections is "Who is "@me"?" and "What is "some description"?". I want to refactor this to make it easier to maintain the site and, of course, be able to see content of "Who is @me?" and "What is some description" in every section. I also want the page to be able to dynamically generate the sections, so I don't want to force this with "Is X section active" or something like that. I am not sure if my best approach is to separate the 2 websites and refactor them, or create a new website with the common sections and just reference them in the 2 existing websites, like this: Note: I use Zend Framework and CakePHP for my websites, but this doesn't mean I cannot adapt to other technologies. Thanks for your time and suggestions!

A: In Zend Framework you have View Composers that you use in conjunction with view resolvers. In this case you would write a view composer that uses the view resolver to get you the title view based on the context path. Then in the section views you can set the context path so that the title view is used. It would go something like this: Create a Shared view composer Create view resolvers Create common views Setup your context paths in each section views The benefit of this is that you can render the title views in any view you want.
