8 Game The game itself is a neat puzzle-game with clear goals and enough variety to keep you interested. The puzzles weren't that hard. 8 Game Prerelease: 9 Prerelease The puzzle game has a lot of twists and will keep you waiting a while till you get it right. 9 Game About: 9 Game In Paradigm, you play a specialised agent whose job it is to solve puzzles before time runs out. With the help of an interactive, augmented-reality computer, you'll be able to get into a creepy and occasionally ridiculous situation to crack some cold cases. 8 Game Controls: 8 Game The game is simple: solve the puzzles before the timer runs out. It'll take about an hour to do the first case. 9 Game Story: 8 Game You're a specialised agent from the game's futuristic setting and you just crashed the spaceship you were piloting into a mountainside. You've been sent back to solve some cold cases in the meanwhile. 8 Game Issues with a Budget: 8 Game Paradigm is available on PC as well as Xbox One and PlayStation 4. Unfortunately, it's only available on those platforms for two weeks, making it a bit of a budget title. 9 Game The Good: 9 Game A cute puzzle game with simple controls, tight gameplay and, according to a majority of the reviewers, a very creative and original idea. 9 Game The Bad: 8 Game It only works on the budget-labels. 8 Game The Bottom Line: 9 Game Overall, Paradigm works as an original, twisted puzzle game for a wide audience. For the fans of dark games, there's plenty of light to enjoy. It's a little weird, yes. 9 Game 9 Game August 11, 2014 Roms I'm a fan of both dark and comedic games. Paradigm falls into both of those categories. I was a little disappointed with the story, but overall, I had a pretty enjoyable time. 8 Games Controls: 8 Games The puzzle game has simple controls and a surprisingly easy game design. 8 Games Story: 9 Games The puzzle game relies heavily on its story and characters, which is something I liked because it made the game more unique. 8 Games Issues with a Budget: 8 Games Paradigm is available on PC as well as Xbox

of His Mind," the porch gun. He thinks of pawning it. Then spends a long time thinking about where. Before he can do anything his partner, Paul, rings his phone from the car. He's in the library with a street map of Santa Cruz. "You've got him?" he says. "Excellent. Leave it for now." While they're talking Daniel can hear what sounds like Ted foofing the piano. His heart is hammering in his chest. He stands close to the doorjamb and pleads "don't fuck" as Paul and his partner drive past him. * * * "It's gonna take a lot more than just picking the safe when there's a hand grenade under it," is what Paul says when Daniel tells him what happened. Paul and his partner are both much older, with heavy beards and rickety leathery eyes.

Neither of them seems to be all there, but at least Daniel has the feeling he's got the leash on them. If the drugs or something like that kicked in, no telling what they'd do. He has a moment of worry about Paul pulling out the gun and putting a bullet in him. "What the hell do you mean, it's gonna take more than just picking the safe?" "I'm not really trying to stop you," Daniel says. "I got him right there." He points toward the blue Audi that's pulling into the next visitor parking lot. The asshole's either scared to death or trying to delay. The passenger door opens to reveal a shaven black dome of a head peering through the car window. "Anyone can open the safe, Daniel. You told us that yourself. The challenge is doing it without setting off the hand grenade." Daniel steams. "It's three twenty-eight. He set me up. He knows it's after three." The bearded man hauls himself off the porch. Daniel can smell Pine-Sol on his sweat. He owns a cleaning service, Rumpled Flanders & Sons. He clears his throat. "You didn't tell me your name." "I'm going to have to go with Paul for now," Ted says. "I'm more in charge." He bends and offers Daniel his hand. "My name is Ted Baranco, Detective. You remember that. And please call me Ted." "Can I just make one more phone call first
