Arts Agrees to Pay up to Five Million Euros in DamagesFri, 27 Jul 2013 12:22:03 GMT

Electronic Arts Inc., a leading worldwide developer, publisher and distributor of interactive entertainment software applications for the PC, PSP, PS2, PS3 and PS Vita platforms, and of games for mobile devices, today announced that it has agreed to pay the Maxim Group corporation and Grundstatement ten million euros each in damages for the breach of contractual compliance under Austrian law.

The settlement of the Maxim group case, which was brought in cooperation with Austrian law firm Tappeiner Frennert Heftungs- und Rechtsberatung, resolves all outstanding claims of Maxim Group in Austria arising out of the breach of the licensing contract for the online games Collide and Ultimate Tower Defense, and stipulates that Electronic Arts will make an extra-judicial declaration in favour of Maxim, whereby Electronic Arts acknowledges that its quality guarantee as part of the subsidiary Grand Theft Studio regarding its licensed online games is invalid.

The Maxim Group contends that it lost over 15 percent of its total revenues in sales of Collide and Ultimate Tower Defense in Austria due to the breach of the quality guarantee. The Maxim Group claims to have suffered damages totalling more than one million euros in loss of Gross Revenue and Duplication of Product due to the breach of the licensing contract. During the proceedings in Austria, the Maxim Group also obtained a preliminary injunction limiting the online game activities. Electronic Arts did not contest the temporary injunctions and waived all objections to them.

The Maxim Group and Grundstatement assert that as part of the settlement Electronic Arts made an extra-judicial declaration in favour of Maxim, whereby Electronic Arts acknowledges that its quality guarantee as part of the subsidiary Grand Theft Studio regarding its licensed online games is invalid. Furthermore, Electronic Arts agreed to pay extra-judicial compensation of five million euros.

Maxim Group and Grundstatement will abstain from all actions against Electronic Arts regarding the sale of the title Collide at present.

The Maxim Group and Grundstatement request Maxbet
