Because you're trying to balance the thickness of the nib with the flow of ink, it's important that you are able to see what you're doing when you're writing. I'm very fond of writing in a small, notepad style journal. However, there are a wide variety of tablets or pens suitable for calligraphy, also for this purpose. Furthermore, the book also delves into calligraphy basics, concepts like atmospheric calligraphy and blackletter. Many calligraphers find that learning basic principles and techniques for traditional styles, can also help to understand new digital calligraphy art and styles. I've also included in this best book to help beginners from digital calligraphy beginners, learning resources to help you get started. While the majority of the chapters are dedicated to traditional styles of lettering, there is also one dedicated to digital calligraphy and pen lettering. Finally, this book also covers best book to sharpen your pen and ink skills. From clean and contemporary scripts through to script calligraphy and penmanship. Looking for even more medieval fonts Make sure to check out GraphicRiver too. It's another great source for high-quality fonts, including medieval-style font designs. On GraphicRiver, all of the content is on demand. Download what you need, when you need it, for a one-time price. Medieval fonts largely refer to an aesthetic: think Middle Ages font here. You might want fonts like this for role-playing games, renaissance faires, fantasy novels, and more. Fonts in this genre often have elements that resemble blackletter fonts. They are ornate and have an aged quality, rather than following modern design trends.

Because many have asked for it - here is now a set of my script grids for download! Grid sheets are a great help in learning both in keeping the letter height, the line spacing and last but not least the script angle. The grids here are not meant to be printed out and written on directly the lines are too thick and dark for that. I use these grids by printing them on heavier paper and attaching a sheet of semi-transparent paper to them (with washi tape). Normal 80 to 100 g paper is transparent enough, even without a light table. You can buy a real classic nib and paper type as ink- and ink-matching pair for cheap on eBay. I also recommend the Brause 362 point, as it has a super smooth nib tip and the price-performance ratio is relatively high as well. Some nibs are sold individually, others come as a nib bundle. In the gallery below Ive listed at the top of each image the price I paid in my last Etsy-purchase. Some of my images are available in high resolution, others are more detailed in my portfolio on Gumroad. Prices for regular sized prints are available on my Gumroad portfolio, too! A print or download of this set is only possible in triple size. A good website for calligraphy enthusiasts is www.pointlesspens.com. It has many useful calligraphy articles and also an international community forum. One of the best pages in my opinion is the Calligraphy discussion page. But on that page I also found the link to the Photoshop user group. The author answers the question how to fix bad lettering with a picture of the lettering being fixed. That link should also give you some inspiration to fix your own type! If you are not very familiar with graphic design, you might also get some ideas from the website www.textshark.com . Most of the time, the website offers a free trial. 5ec8ef588b
